PHILIPP FULFILLS
HIS TAX PROMISES

STATE EXPENDITURES REDUCED IN CONFORMANCE WITH ELECTION ISSUES.
FIGURES PRESENTED
B. A. Kickhoefer, Secretary of Public Affairs Board, Outlines Tabulated Income and Outgo for Biennium.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., Aug. 31.—"Mr. Taxpayer: Your state taxes are to be reduced in accordance with your demands."
"Last year when you went to the polls, the most important issue that you had to consider was that of lower taxes."
"A majority of you believed that the cost of state government had exceeded reasonable bounds."
"The election placed on the shoulders of the elected the responsibility for the carrying out of your wishes."
"Some have refused to acknowledge that responsibility and have not only made no effort to grant your desires, but have actually opposed those who have tried to live up to their election contracts."
"Nevertheless the fact remains that the will of the people is still the law of the land in this state and our tax receipts will confirm this statement."
"Your state taxes will be lowered."
"In this effect is the message of Governor Philipp and his friends in the 1915 legislature to the people of the state. It is based on figures just compiled by B. A. Kickhoefer, the recently appointed secretary of the board of public affairs, who has the financial clerk of the legislative finance committee. Heretofore such a message was an impossibility because of the fact that a complete financial statement could not be made up until after all appropriation bills had been acted upon by the legislature and either signed or vetoed by the governor. In fact even at this time it is impossible to give the exact amount of the reduction in taxes because the estimates of state revenues can only be estimated."
"In order to understand the financial tables of comparison that follow and which incidentally are the first accurate table given out for publication, it is first necessary to know how the general property taxes are levied and why a tax for general purposes is sometimes made. Briefly this is the prevailing system in 6 October each year a general summing of state finances is made by the board of assessment. It determines just how much the revenue of the state will amount to. To this total is added the amount that are required by law, such as the university and common school mill tax. This grand total is then compared with the amount of money appropriated for the coming year. If the total revenue amounts to more than the total appropriations, then a remission of taxes may be made. Suppose for instance that the mill tax for common schools was $100,000 and it was found that the revenues of the state would exceed the appropriation demands by $100,000. The tax remission board would remit that $100,000 to the people. On the other hand, it was found that the appropriations for the year exceeded the revenues, then it would be necessary to levy a tax for general purposes to make up the deficit. The following is Mr. Kickhoefer's summary of the estimated receipts for the next two years, exclusive of the general property taxes:

	1915-16	1916-17
Normal schools	1915-16	1916-17
& the un-	$10,865,899	$11,227,290
Now in addition to these receipts the state is forced by law to levy a tax for free high schools, graded schools, certificates of indebtedness, common schools, university and normal schools. The totals of these taxes is as follows:
1915-16	1916-17
$4,551,690	$4,689,700
Consequently the total that the state will get from both direct and indirect taxes for the coming biennium is as follows:
1915-16	1916-17
$10,865,899	$11,227,290
4,551,690	4,689,700
Grand total for the biennium	$15,390,489	$15,916,990
Amount for the state	$1,307,459	$1,307,459
Total appropriations allowed for biennium	$14,083,030	$14,609,531
Difference	$1,307,459	$1,307,459
From this it will be seen that the tax remission board will be able to remit approximately $1,307,459 annually for the next two years because the revenues of the state exceed the appropriations by about that much each year. However, another factor has to be taken into consideration and this is money in the treasury. Judging from the past it is the conservative estimate that there will be at least $400,000 a year of money in treasury that can be used to offset appropriations. Adding this to the $1,307,459 of excess revenues we get the total figure of $800,000 for each year of the next biennium which can be remitted from the general property taxes. The following are the estimated totals of the general property taxes (as shown above):
1915-16	1916-17
$4,551,690	$4,689,700
Subtracting the excess revenue plus money in the treasury	$800,000
Estimated total general property taxes for the next biennium	$3,751,690	$3,889,700
Adding these two totals we get a total for the biennium of $7,611,270. By comparing this last total with the general property tax of the last biennium of $12,927,681 we find that the general property tax for the present biennium will be approximately $5,300,000 less. This would amount to nearly $7,000,000 but for the fact that the previous administration under the so-called gentlemen's agreement held up appropriations amounting to $2,192,000 and of this amount the 1915 legislature saw fit to repeal only $500,000. This leaves a "hang-over" appropriation of $1,692,000 that the present administration will have to take care of. If this appropriation had been entirely repealed the total tax of the present biennium would be $5,800,000 less than the total tax of the preceding two years, instead of only $5,300,000. The

FROST IS ESCAPED
BY A FEW DEGREES

Lowest Temperature in Janesville for Last Twenty-Four Hours Was 35 Degrees Fahrenheit.
Janesville and vicinity escaped a second frost last night by a few degrees, according to S. B. Heddies, official government observer. The lowest temperature recorded was 35 degrees Fahrenheit on the low ground and 41 degrees on high ground. The minimum temperature was 63 degrees. Sky was clear with indications of fair weather with a probable rise in temperature. Normal temperature for the day should have been 69 degrees.

JOHN BARRYMORE IN "THE DISASTER"

Well Known Stage Success Offers Fine Vehicle For Comedy
Star's Humor.
John Barrymore, whose every appearance on the screen insures a carnival of mirth, attained a genuine triumph in the thrillingly humorous photo-adaptation of the popular stage success, "The Dictator," at the Apollo yesterday.
Assisted by a most competent cast, including Charlotte Ives, Mr. Barrymore kept his audiences in a continual good humor. The comedy was up to the Paramount Standard and not of the slap stick variety, therefore wholly enjoyable. Produced in New York and Cuba the true atmosphere of the story was given.

Safety First

Chicago & Northwestern.
Joe Smith has assumed duties after doing lay work on the St. Paul on account of a stationary engine being broke.
W. Lewis is laying off from runs 588 and 595.
Engine 1238 has been transferred from the Madison division to the Northern Iowa division. Movement to be made via Milwaukee.
Saturday's baseball game was called off on account of Elmer Lee being away.
Fred Barisch has returned after a protracted stay in Nebraska.
Howard Wade is taking the responsible position as timekeeper at the roundhouse.
The Chicago & Northwestern has ordered eight engine cars from the American Car & Foundry company, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. Engineer Duxstad is laying off for a few days.
Engineer Seitz is laying off for a few days and Engineer Rooney is taking his place on the night switch engine.
Chemist James Scannon was in Milwaukee for the week-end.
Engine 358 is in the roundhouse for repairs.
Government Inspector E. G. Simmonds was in Janesville one day last week.
Dan McDonald, oil man, is taking a trip through the southern part of Canada.
New super-heated engine has been put on the Janesville line.

Assumption of Risk.
A fireman, pushing back a crane after taking up a cable, was bolted 6 or 8 inches long and thereby sustained injuries. There were also on the tank a piece of rubber hose, an iron bar, about 2 inches of clinders, and two lumps of coal which had fallen over the lattice work supporting the coal. The engine carries no tool box and it was shown to be customary when engines carry no tool box to place such things about the manhole the three articles mentioned. It was held by the Arkansas supreme court that the risk of stepping on the bolt was one of those inherent in the employment and was assumed by him.—Kansas City Southern vs. Livesay (Ark.), 177 S. W. 875.

Proximate Cause of Injury—Rescuing Property.
A section foreman, while with his crew on a hand car, saw a train approaching behind him when it was at such a distance that he had time to get out of its way. When the train was within 200 or 300 feet he thought he had time to remove the car, and he gave the signal for the removal of one of his men, delaying the removal. He was injured and in an action against the railroad the Montana supreme court held that the failure to give a warning signal was not the proximate cause of his injury, and he could not recover. While he was not guilty of contributory negligence in his attempt to save the railroad's property, it would be necessary to his recovery that he show precedent negligence toward himself after the attempt was begun.—Nelson vs. Northern Pacific (Mont.), 148 Pac. 388.

New Locomotive Inspection Rules.
In accordance with the act of congress, passed last March, to extend the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission over the inspection and testing of the entire steam locomotive and tender, rules and instructions have just been formulated by the Division of Locomotive Boiler Inspection. They were considered at a conference with a railroad committee on Aug. 23.—These rules are set forth in a 15-page pamphlet and cover ash pans, brake and signal equipment, cabs, running signals and sanders, draw gear and draw gear, driving gear, lights, running gear, tenders and throttle and reversing gear.

Duty as to Section Men at Work.
In an action for the death of a section foreman at a crossing which was at the time enveloped in steam and smoke, the Kansas supreme court holds that railroad companies in the operation of their roads have a right to assume that their section men while at work on the track will look out for the approach and passage of trains at all times and that such companies owe to their section men no duty to warn them of the approach of trains save when such employees are found to be in a place of danger and it becomes apparent that they will not or cannot protect themselves. Crossing signals are not intended or required for the benefit of section men at work, and the failure to give such signals is not negligence as to such employees. This rule is not changed by the fact that a preceding train going in the opposite direction has left the other track enveloped in steam and smoke. This condition requires added vigilance on the part of the employees to protect themselves.—Land vs. St. Louis & S. F. (Kan.), 148 Pac. 612.
Notice: Quarterly conference meeting of the Methodist church tonight at the church. Dr. Miller, district superintendent, will preside.

LOCAL HUNTERS TO HAVE OPPORTUNITY TO SHOOT CHICKENS

Open Season Announced for Chicken and Grouse for First Time in Several Years.

Local sportsmen are much interested in the statement that the state conservation commission on Monday announced that it had received a large number of inquiries from hunters regarding the right to shoot prairie chickens and grouse in different counties in the state, and especially from residents of a number of counties where it is unlawful to take such birds at any time during the year. Under the new law it is unlawful to shoot prairie chickens and grouse at any time in the counties of Milwaukee, Waukesha, Kaukauba, Calumet, Door, Forest, Iron, Kenosha, La Crosse, Langlade, Lincoln, Manitowish, Oconto, Ozaukee, Price, Racine, Sanik, Sheboygan, Taylor, Winnebago, Vilas, Walworth, Washington and Winnebago. In other counties the open season is from Sept. 1 to Oct. 1.

There are numerous coveys of chickens in the county and several hunters have ordered bird dogs by telegraph since it was discovered that hunting could be enjoyed.

LOUISIANA VOTERS BALLOT ON CALLING A CONVENTION

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New Orleans, Aug. 31.—Voters to-day balloted on the question of calling a constitutional convention here September 14, and at the same time voted for delegates. The convention would consider certain state financial problems.

COLD BREEZES BLOW AND STRAW HATS GO

September 'Arrives at Midnight But Fall Weather Arrives Ahead of Time.

The death knell of straw hats will be sounded tomorrow after August will be ushered off the calendar in favor of September. But there has been little need of a time limit as the "summer" breeze of the last two days fanned under the keen breath of the man from the Boreal regions has prompted the straw hat owners to have their little funeral services for the summer's pride last week and there has been a rush for the hat stores for some sky-piece less ventilating.

Only a few that were fitted with a super-abundance of nerve ventured to wear their hats today and the most of them had for combination with the hats, a light overcoat. Along with the straw hats the alleged sport shirts were also absent and in their place the younger generation had dug-up sweaters and many were proudly displaying the prison stripe style of gay colors. The first touch of winter has also caused the average man reluctance each morning on braving the frigid atmosphere in summer underwear and to seek the last winter's supply of "long ones."

The blasty winds, however, have moved the ice-man into a cloud of dense pessimism and have the coal-man smiling with fiendish glee, keeping him busy taking the order for the winter's supply for the Jones and Smiths. The change put a decided and most effective damper on river sports and the youths who wanted to go swimming and tried to jump in, came out fifty per cent faster than they went in and crawled into their clothes before the icicles formed from their steaming breath. Once was enough.

The sportsmen look at the cold weather as a forerunner for an early duck season as the sharp days will have the ducks and geese looking toward the sunny and balmy south preparing for the long flight. The hobo clan look at the advent of the cold breezes as an infringement on the summer for it will not mean they can exist on the northerner's hospitality much longer, having to seek the south or the big city soup houses.

And more than one automobile owner swore at first gently and then more sternly when his Eliver refused to heed the first spin of the crank for the motor had caught cold during the night and had to be warmed up by much muscle exertion before starting out the cough and whirl of leaving.

POSTPONING OLD AGE.

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys will often make a man or woman feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains in back, stiffness under eyes, stiff joints and sore muscles, biliousness, headache and various other symptoms give warning that the kidneys need help. Foley's Kidney Pills bring a sound, healthy condition and help the kidneys eliminate uric acid and other poisons from the system, which, when permitted to remain, cause dangerous disease. W. T. PROVISION IS MADE FOR WHITTET'S PAY

Will Be Reimbursed for Services as Financial Expert From Executive Department Appropriation.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 31.—Lawrence C. Whittet of Edgerton, speaker of the lower house of the legislature, will continue to serve as expert financial assistant to the governor, notwithstanding the discovery that the section of the law appropriating $5,000 a year to the governor to pay the expenses of such an employee was inadvertently repealed by a law passed later in the session. The provisions of the law authorizing the governor to employ a financial expert to keep a check on public expenditures was not affected by the section repealed, and hence the governor will continue to employ Mr. Whittet and instead of paying him as at first intended, will pay him out of the general department, which is $16,000 for the current year and $18,000 for the next fiscal year.

After it was discovered that the section of the law carrying the $5,000 annual appropriation for the financial expert had been repealed, the governor decided that although the appropriation for his department during the coming two years had at his request been cut 30 per cent from that made for his predecessor in office, the appropriation was still large enough to enable him to meet all demands and also retain Mr. Whittet at a salary of $500 a year for expenses. Mr. Whittet said he would continue to serve as financial expert.

One of the state departments discovered that the section of the law appropriating $5,000 for a financial expert had been repealed by a law passed later in the session.

HURTS ENTIRE NATION.

There is nothing that is injuring the solidarity of this country of ours as the variance of opinion as to the European struggle. While individuals may have their personal differences as to the rights or wrongs of this country or that, still we are one great nation in which each nationality must play its part. This nation is the melting pot of the world. Here Slav and Teuton, Austrian and Italian, Greek and Roumanian, Irish and Swede, English and Spaniard, all must meet on an equal footing and with the Americans of the second generation learn to love and respect the flag that waves over us all and typifies unity and freedom of thought, religion and tyranny. This is a great nation of ours, this United States, and we should all love the Stars and Stripes, respect what they stand for and for the good conditions of political servitude and be Americans once first, last and always. The Wall Street Journal says that every reader numbers among his acquaintances naturalized Germans, or those of German extraction, exemplary citizens, kind-hearted and law-abiding, who are utterly alien to the methods of the propaganda so damagingly disclosed through the enterprise of the New York World.

These citizens hardly need to be told that Bismarck's "Reptile Press" is a plant which cannot take root in this soil, or flourish under the cold light of pitiless publicity. Subsidized prints, conducted by the weeds of journalism, may be dismissed with contempt. They exist solely for the purpose of which the German Intelligence Department is so unbelievably simple as to pay them. In the matter of alienating old friends and creating new enemies, their activities have been worse than useless.

But when official agents, by disingenuous methods, seek to embarrass this Government in order to embroil it with Great Britain over the Orders in Council, they create a boomerang which must necessarily do their cause irreparable damage. The admitted delay of exports in order to embarrass American manufacture, throws the German case away. Future protests by manufacturers with a legitimate grievance against the British blockade are defeated before they are made.

If Secretary Lansing had not already disposed of the question of exporting munitions of war, the admission that Germany herself is a buyer of such munitions and succeeds in getting them delivered through some neutral channel, would destroy the one remaining weapon for pro-German agitation. But why should there be such agitation? Why not trust to the intelligence of the American people and the good faith of the newspaper press?

There is not a newspaper in good standing which will not readily publish news from German sources of authentic origin and intrinsic probability. Responsible German opinion is news also. It has been given the fullest hospitality in the columns of newspapers not in sympathy with the Teutonic ideal.

Suppose that respectable German element which is in the overwhelming majority puts its foot down. Suppose it withdraws its subsidies from fake peace societies.

MISSIONARIES AND WARS.

"How do you regard hardships, suffering and peril incurred in carrying on missionary work? To what extent are you taking them into account and preparing yourself to meet them?"

These are among the searching questions put to persons who present themselves for missionary appointment by the officers of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. That they are pertinent questions is well shown by the fact that during the 105 years of the Board's history there have been but brief periods when it was not called upon to face wars, massacres, famine or plague or some great national disaster. These wars include the Sepoy rebellion in India in 1857-58; the Crimean war, the war between Egypt and Turkey, the Japanese-Chinese and Japanese-Russian wars, the Armenian massacres from 1894 to 1909, the war with Spain, the war between Turkey and Greece in 1897, the Boxer uprising in China, the Japanese and Chinese revolutions, the two Balkan wars and now the great European-Asiatic war.

In not one of these events have the missionaries sought personal safety by fleeing the country, as they have done quite free to do. They have stood by their native people, bringing relief and comfort to the homeless, giving to sick and wounded, through their hospitals and medical staff the only possible scientific relief; turning their schools into orphanages and their mission grounds into places of refuge for non-combatants.

These missionaries are men and women from our best homes, well educated and carefully chosen and they represent the one uplifting, steadying force in times such as so much of the Eastern World is going through today.

The present war affects mission stations in Africa, in parts of China, in Persia, Egypt, Turkey, the Balkans and in the Islands of the Pacific. Contending forces have surged round the mission premises, and national flags have changed over their heads but the missionaries are "on their job"—they feed the hungry, heal the sick and preach the gospel to the poor.

the accuracy of their assertions has always been contested by those responsible for the Underwood tariff bill on the ground that such statements were partisan and untrue. Now comes, however, from an obviously impartial source, abundant confirmation of this view. Herr Wetzoldt, financial representative of the Imperial German Government, so states in a confidential report to his government, saying, among other things, "The large war orders * * * have become the great means of saving American business institutions from idleness and financial ruin," and again, "The fact that institutions of the size and international influence of those mentioned could not find sufficient business to keep them to some extent occupied—half, at least—throws a harsh light on the sad condition in which American business would have found itself had it not been for the war orders." In view of these conditions grave apprehension is felt regarding the condition in which business would find itself were the war suddenly to end before the tariff can be readjusted. Were the war to end suddenly and the millions of men now on the European battlefields to return to their normal pursuits, without radical revision of the Underwood bill having been effected, this country would be flooded with products of European manufacture while American mills and factories stood idle.

If William Jennings Bryan and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt could be prevailed upon to go to some desert island and discuss this war from all points of vantage, maybe the United States could do without their senseless disputes for a time and still be a representative government at the same time.

It might be possible to believe that the excessive rains have not been due to the war in Europe after all but the explosion of so many presidential bombs all at once long before they even should have had the gas instilled in them.

No matter what evils may have struck this country in the past few months, rain, wind or lightning, nothing could have been as bad as the fact that if the progressives had elected their peerless leader as president, we might now have Americans living in unknown and unmarked graves in the trenches of Europe.

There was no indication that the Gulf of Mexico meant to give us a warning by the way of hurricanes and the man made dikes against the inroads of the waters proved as valuable as have the dikes of Holland in times past.

Is it not peculiar that the weather man is so uncertain about what is going to happen that when in doubt he plays rain as his trump card in some way or other hits right almost every time.

Petrograd finds that it is a tonic time between celebrations, but still it leads the foreign foe on into the interior until it is possible that the famous retreat of Napoleon from Moscow may be repeated.

New Printing Equipment Installed For The Gazette

There has been installed recently in the printing department of the Gazette another color press of the Miehle Printing Press & Mfg. Co. product of the four roller type, a duplicate of one already running in the Gazette press rooms. With the addition of the new machine, which by the way has no superior in the printing trades, the service of this department will be enhanced materially and production of high class printing and color work generally will be handled to much better advantage.

Another recent addition to the printing department's equipment is a Hall folding machine, which is capable of handling one to three folds at 2,500 per hour. This machine is for use on small circulars and business literature and relieves the manufacturers and business men of hand folding, a slow and expensive process. The printing department will keep pace with the demand for up to date equipment as it has in the past and will do all it can to merit the confidence reposed in it by its friends.

Almost everything wanted are found advertised in Gazette want ads. Read them and see.

TOO MANY DIAMONDS BEWILDER EMPLOYEES

Young Ladies at Machine Company Perplex Men of Office Monday.

—A Clever Scheme.

Office romances are subject to much conversation among the employees of the office where the romance originated. Yesterday there appeared on the overabundance of office romances at the Janesville Machine Company and for a time it looked to those who were not diamond experts, as if the Janesville Machine Company was going to lose nearly all of their women employees through the fatal efforts of Dan Cupid. The fact that all the girls were would-be diamond rings on the third finger of the left hand, created a great excitement, and for a time the wearers of the rings carefully guarded their secrets. It happened this way. Recently the women employees gave a shower in honor of one of their co-workers, who are soon to become brides. At each guest's plate there was a large "diamond" diamond with a lustre that was suspiciously near like that of a plate glass window. It is said they can be purchased at the rather some price of two jinnies. The next morning one of the young ladies appeared at work with the big "diamond" on the third finger of her left hand. The men of the office, who were soon to become brides, looked at the "stone" and then whispered behind their back for their neighbor to "take a look." There was no need of it, however, for everybody noticed the ring. Questions as to who the giver of the ring was went unheeded, and the male employees soon had the "diamond" picked out and the wedding date set. That was not so bad, but in the afternoon every girl who had been present at the reception came to work with a glaring diamond on the suspicious finger and then the "diamond" sex was thunderstruck. Cupid was working overtime and must have used a rapid firing gun instead of the customary bow and arrow. The "diamond" sex, and the "glass" glittered and shone on the fingers of the "stones" and bookkeepers and then someone gave the secret away. The young men who had been persistent in asking about the diamonds and "kidding" the girls, had nothing to say all that day, but confined their efforts to the work in front of them.

THOMAS MORRISSEY

NEW NIGHT CAPTAIN

Is Oldest Member of Janesville Police Department.—Appointment Goes to the Police Commission.

Thomas J. Morrissey, yesterday afternoon, was appointed as night captain by Chief of Police P. D. Chapman and the recommendation will be made to the fire and police commission for the approval of the appointment. Morrissey is to succeed the late Patrick Fanning who held the captain's badge until taken ill a year ago. Morrissey is the oldest patrolman on the Janesville police force at the present time, having served about fifteen years. The appointment means an increase in pay and he will be transferred to night duty, being stationed on the "middle" beat.

WILL ARGUE DUDLEY

CASE ON WEDNESDAY

Arguments Set for Today are Postponed Until Tomorrow Morning at Ten O'clock.

Attorneys in the Dudley alleged arson case will argue on the motion to bind Dr. E. H. Dudley over for trial Wednesday morning, starting at ten o'clock. This morning the case was set on the docket for arguments, but the attorney's sought another day's adjournment to obtain further information from the testimony given in the preliminary examination. It is probably that the arguments will take all of tomorrow morning and a part of the afternoon, and excellent legal addresses to the court are expected from Attorneys C. E. Jeffrey for the defense, and Charles E. Pierce and Baker for the state.

CABOOSE INTERIOR

DESTROYED BY FIRE

Chemicals Extinguish Heavier Flames About One O'clock Near St. Paul Transfer House.

A fire of unknown origin destroyed the interior of a caboose on the C. & M. & St. Paul railroad shortly before one o'clock this afternoon. The St. Paul transfer house, located west of the Pearl street crossing. The department answered the call in a hurry and hastily opened the chemicals from the truck and chief's machine on the burning car. Notified by a switch engine sent down to free the caboose from the boxcars, the freight train having only arrived from Davis Junction at noon and lodged on the spur track.

The crew left the caboose shortly after the train arrived here and a close examination shows that no hot box caused the flames. The caboose number is 0106. Firemen were able to save the frame, only the car interior suffering any great damage.

OLD HUNTING BLANKS

OF NO USE THIS YEAR

Applicants Cannot Receive New Licenses on Presentation of Last Year's Permit—Must Use Application Blank.

Further education in Wisconsin status are necessary in the cases of a great number of Rock county hunters before a license to hunt can be issued to them. The impression that it is only necessary to bring or mail in the license of the past year, passed and secured a new license for the coming season has given County Clerk Howard W. Lee and his deputy, Miss Frances M. Hall, no end of trouble during the past two weeks.

For the enlightenment of those who have mailed in their old license it must be known that this year a special application blank furnished by the state must be used before any hunting license will be issued. This is an act of the last legislature and until the blank is properly filled out, no license will be issued.

With the approach of the hunting season it is expected that a tremendous rush will prevail for a week or more. Approximately two hundred applications have been received by mail to date.

RAID THE HANOVER

HOTEL THIS MORNING

Peter Liston Arraigned in Municipal Court Late This Afternoon on Charge of Illegal Sale of Liquor.

Peter Liston was arraigned in the municipal court late this afternoon on the charge of selling liquor without a license at the Hanover hotel in the town of Janesville. This morning the county jail authorities made an unexpected visit to the hotel and it is alleged found a quantity of liquor in the place. Liston entered a plea of not guilty to the charge and his case was set for Sept. 27th. He was released in the custody of the arresting officer.

Jens Iverson of the town of Milton, was arraigned in the court before Liston on the charge of wife desertion. The defendant demanded an examination which was set for Sept. 27th. Bail to the amount of five hundred dollars was furnished.

DOES ADVERTISING

PAY, ASK JOHN BULL?

Kitchener's Army Raised By Greatest Display of Advertising World Has Ever Known.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Aug. 31.—How many million dollars worth of advertising has been spent in advertising during the first year of the war no expert accountant has yet had the facilities to estimate. It is safe to say, however, that no nation ever spent one-tenth as much on printers' ink in the same period.

Kitchener's army has been raised chiefly by display of billboards, half page and smaller advertisements in the papers are almost daily occurrences. The billboards have been covered with the greatest variety of posters and advertisements of all kinds. A collection of these would reveal every play of ingenious appeal advertising experts are capable of inventing. The signs on trams, buses and private motor cars are more numerous than the signs on the streets.

There are appeals for recruits in prose and verse, in cartoon and suggestion, and every method is used to attract as colored inks and trained advertising men can make them.

The recent big war loan, the largest in the history of governmental borrowing, was raised by the use of another tremendous advertising campaign. Even the big advertisers who have contracts for the outside pages of the dailies were pushed into the inside of the paper to contribute to the war effort.

The public had not become accustomed to Great Britain as a big advertiser because of the methods of the past. Recruiting crusades, the dimensions of this campaign of advertising for money would have seemed startling, for in itself it was altogether new to the advertising world.

Now there are signs of a third big advertising movement by Great Britain in its "thrill campaign." Already the posters are everywhere and giving less meat to eat more vegetables, to insist that each loaf of bread weigh two pounds, to report any dealer trying to sell a smaller loaf, and giving similar advice to economical housekeeping. This third campaign on the part of the Empire hitherto regarded as conservative and not given to modern methods of advertising is now being reached the proportions of the other two—the campaign for money—but it is in embryo still.

All the big advertising and break fast food advertisers in the United States must take a bare-seat compared to the British Empire now when the dimensions, cost or character of display is in question.

John Bull has become the greatest advertiser on earth.

OSHKOSH METHODIST PASTOR

WANTS CHANGE OF CLIMATE.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 31.—The Rev. Wm. Norman Jameson, pastor of the first Methodist church of Oshkosh, will go to be relieved from duty and transferred to a change of climate at the meeting of the congress to be held in Racine next week.

The Oshkosh Methodist church has sent a unanimous call to Rev. Jameson, and the second Methodist church has sent a call to Rev. B. C. White, Oshkosh.

May Wed: John C. Fitzgerald Jr. and Vera L. Johnson, both of Beloit, were granted a marriage license by County Clerk Lee today.

Orchids.

Among plants nature's imitations are much more numerous than in the animal kingdom, says a writer in Gas Logic. There are several species of orchids, for instance, bearing popular names which suggest the likeness of the flower to some member of the animal kingdom, among them being the man orchid, the bee orchid, the spider orchid and the lizard orchid.

LARGE ENROLLMENT

AT BELOIT SCHOOLS

3200 Students Expected to Commence Work Next Tuesday—Verne Allen Sustains Third Break in Leg.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Beloit, August 31.—At least 3200 students, it is expected, will begin school work here when school opens on next Tuesday morning. At the high school, the usual attendance of about six hundred will probably be maintained. A new roof has been erected over the assembly room of the old high school and south partitions removed, thus enabling the authorities to install a hundred more seats.

Is Most Unfortunate.

Verne Allen has been most unfortunate within the past two months and a half, yesterday having sustained the third break in his left leg in the same place during that time. Early in June, while playing baseball at York park, he broke his left leg six inches below the knee. A month later while walking on crutches, he slipped and fell, receiving the second break in the same spot. The injury was nearly healed when yesterday, while riding to work on his bicycle, he was hit by a wagon and knocked off the wheel and sent into a ditch. The last break is of a more serious nature. He had lives at Fair Oaks, south of Beloit.

Beach Is Promised.

Alderman Rossow has promised Beloit that next spring the city council will take steps to purchase or rent property along Rock river near the city for the purpose of installing a municipal bathing beach. His action is brought on through public demands made for such an amusement place.

DUNDEE GETS CLEAN

WIN OVER MITCHELL

New York Lightweight Knocks Milwaukee Pride to Floor Twice in Opening Round.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Milwaukee, Aug. 31.—Johnny Dundee, the fighting "Scotch-wop" of Gotham, opened the lid on boxing in Milwaukee last night and almost knocked the lid off Ritchie Mitchell in doing so in their ten round bout. The Milwaukee prize fight started out in the first round against the little New York lad and after weathering the first minute started rushing Dundee. The easterner charged him with a right to the chin that flattened Mitchell for the count of six.

In the next round the Milwaukee fighter had not recovered from the effects of the landing in the first round and at the start, Dundee dropped him for the count of nine with a snappy left to the jaw. Dundee was after him like a whirlwind after the knock-out. Mitchell kept his feet and guarded off the furious attack. The bell saved him.

Mitchell fought more carefully thereafter, taking no chances to repeat the "Scotch-wop" of Dundee and the Italian could not connect for a knock-out. Dundee buzzed around the Cream City fighter, jumping into the air with his aeroplanes. Mitchell refused to be knocked from his feet. In the eighth Mitchell held his own by good defensive work and in the ninth Dundee speeded up and the round was a merry jangling and Mitchell deserved much credit for sticking with Dundee to the limit.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH CAMERON

OTHER PEOPLE'S MOTIVES.
Someone was wondering why a certain woman was a suffragist. "Oh, that's simple enough," explained the woman who isn't. "There's a rather smart crowd in our town that's taken up suffrage and she has taken that side so as to be in with them."
A little later someone asked her why she was opposed to suffrage and she immediately supplied them with some very high-sounding motives.
Her reasons for thinking as she did were honest and worthy, but her opponent's motives were not.

How Do They Read People's Minds?
I can't tell you. I suppose she knew in that mysterious way in which certain people always know that the person who does not think as they do is influenced by unworthy considerations.
Can from the same piece of goods are the people who are always sure that anyone who criticizes them is narrow or prejudiced or actuated by dislike, envy, pique or some other unworthy motive.
A young girl was obstinately bent on pursuing what seemed to everyone about her a foolish course. Her older sister was arguing against it. "Aunt Lucy thinks you're making a great mistake," said the older sister. "You know she's an old fogey."
"And Miss Marshall" (her high school teacher) thinks it's absolutely crazy. She wants everyone to be a teacher like herself. You can't tell anything by what she says."

Everyone Was Prejudiced Against Her.
"Well, Ruth" (an older girl for whom the younger sister had always had a great admiration), "said she was terribly sorry to hear you thought of taking up that work. She didn't think you were at all fitted for it."
The obstinate one never wavered a moment. "Well, I wouldn't have thought Ruth would be so prejudiced against me by you and mother," was her prompt explanation of that.
It plainly never occurred to her that any of these people might be sincere and wise in their criticisms. They criticized her; she was right; therefore they must be either prejudiced or ill-advised.
Plainly this is not the road to self-improvement and progress. On the contrary.

Question—I am debating whether to send my girl to a co-educational college. Do you think that such a college is dangerous to a girl's morals or manners?—Anxious Mother.
Answer—Theoretically not, if she's any kind of a girl. Personally I am a great believer in the beneficial influence of co-education in keeping a girl so accustomed to the other sex that she doesn't lose her head whenever she sees a man. In the words of David Starr Jordan, "There is less silliness and folly where man is not a novelty."

Glimpses of Married Life

By Mrs. Eva Leonard

"Did you really get away from that hotel leaving the impression that you were old married folks?" asked Nell after she had followed her friend to her room and changed her dress.
"I've blushed," Nell exclaimed.
"I think the crocheting old maid was satisfied when I snatched up the piece of crocheting between the doctor's story and mine. You see he was talking professionally about his children, and as he has assisted about one hundred and fifty babies into the world he could speak of his children with conviction. When she heard him say that he had never called a doctor for them I hastened to explain that he was a doctor himself and congratulated myself that the day was saved."

"You said as much in your letter, but Dick chuckled when he read it and said, 'If they get away with that they're lucky people, they're not out of the woods yet.'"
"Well, the next day after this conversation on the porch," continued Nell, "Gaylord and I—"
"Oh, you have come down to call on him by his given name," interrupted Nell.
"Yes," said I, "I could not manage to call on him once I could call him Gaylord."
"Think like him; I can see the wrinkles in his forehead. Well, go on, Olive," she urged.
"When I was so rudely interrupted—Olive pinched Nell's cheek—"I was about to relate that the next day we took our lunch and fishing tackle and went for a long tramp through the woods. There's a fine trout fishing in that neighborhood, and though I could not catch much of anything, I got so I could hold the fish in a spoonful of water and keep still, and that Gaylord assured me was scoring some. We had a perfectly grand time; the Maine woods are a delight with their clear little trout streams brawling over pebbles. We went up to our arms worn out holding the fishing rod I carried up on the steamer rug and went to sleep. We got back to the hotel just before dinner; the doctor took the fish to the cook to be fried for dinner, while I stopped at the office to get the mail. All the guests were assembled there and I understood why when I saw on the top of the pile a letter addressed to Miss Olive Dunn, Detroit, Michigan, forwarded to Mrs. G. E. Ellison, Daddy was away; I know when the postman came; he never would have left me in the lurch like that. I felt all eyes upon me as I gathered up the letters and left the room very red in the face, I am afraid. You see they had been speculating all day about that letter to the doctor's head at the hotel when the mail came up. I knew that I was being watched all through dinner."

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am writing to ask your advice concerning my sixteen year old daughter. She has lately been associating with a group of young people that my husband does not like. Since going with them she has been keeping late hours and when we tell her she should not stay out that way she just laughs. I have been coaxing and reasoning and have even tried to bribe her, but it does no good. She said she would not go back to school in the fall and was old enough to be her own boss. I do not know what to do. My husband wishes to manage her, but she has never been punished, and I like to disapprove of corporal punishment. Please advise me. THANK YOU.
Let your husband take her in hand. Something ought to be done at once. If kindness will not move her, perhaps punishment will. When you deprive her of her present form of amusement substitute another. Give little parties for her, invite young people in for the evening, take her to the theater and picture show occasionally, and have evenings just for the family when one of you reads a good short story or an interesting novel. It is also essential that she have her work to do. Give her tasks about the house, such as dusting and making beds have her do her own mending and get her interested in sewing.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am very light and therefore the boys call me "Curly Locks," etc., which is very embarrassing. What can I do to make my complexion darker?
(2) What is the birthstone for June?
(3) One of my sisters wants to know what will make her eyelashes long and thick without injuring the lashes now or in the future?
POMMY.
(1) Go in for athletics. The sun and wind will darken your skin. Take the nicknames gamely and after awhile you won't mind them.
(2) A pearl.
(3) Clip the ends very carefully and use red vaseline, five grains; boracic acid, ten centigrams. Make into a cream and rub lightly over the lashes at the roots.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls, one eighteen and the other seventeen years of age. We have no mother and therefore come to you for advice. In the day time we work in our father's store, but in the evening we are so lonesome we don't know what to do. Most of our girl friends have sweethearts and none seem to be able to help us out. We would like to gain the friendship of some good boys, but do not like to injure our reputations by flirting. What would you advise us to do?
LONELY.

Be happy in the things you have to be thankful for now, and later more happiness will come to you. Happiness is within yourselves and a thing which boys cannot bring you. There is nothing you can do but wait for boys to show an interest in you. Don't get discouraged. You are very young yet.

TYPES The Onlookers

By Sara Moore

This was in the hotel waiting room. "I'll bet she's a chorus girl. Only a chorus girl can afford such diamonds," shrilled the woman at the desk telephone. "Isn't it brazen, the way—"
"Oh, I wouldn't say she was from the chorus," murmured her friend reflectively. "A chorus girl never knows when to stop with rouge. That girl's make-up is good; she must be a society woman."
"Oh, leading lady. She has the spotlight habit. Notice how she picked out a chair in the radiance of that floor lamp?" added a third. "Every one knows that a strong light attracts attention."
"I notice you never sit there unless you wear a hat that throws a shadow over your face," returned the first, sweetly.
The business girl with muddy rubbers and windworn hair sighed enviously as she saw her escort gaze riveted upon the beautiful centre of interest.
"A woman who has a maid to dress her and take care of her clothes, and who goes about in taxis or limousines always DOES look fresh and pretty," she observed.
A peevish-looking woman across the table used her longnettes mercilessly.
"The diamonds in that chain are paste," she announced.
"Of course," said a matron grudgingly, "she is stunning—for a brunette. But I never cared for dark women."

"Well, if a woman like that had to raise a family and do her own housework, her nails and complexion wouldn't be any better than mine," snapped another wife, whose husband had ventured to suggest that the picture looked nifty.
"Black braids are cheaper than any other kind," whispered a girl.
"She's a professional model," volunteered the switchboard girl, glancing at the beauty with open envy. "An makes good money by being just handsome. Clothing store merchants furnish her with their newest models—an pay her to wear 'em. And the rest of us poor dubs break our necks—and sometimes our reputations—to copy the duds on a chance that they will make us look the same."

MONUMENT OF JOHN P. ALTELD WILL BE DEDICATED IN CHICAGO.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Chicago, Aug. 31.—On Labor Day, Sept. 6 a monument of John P. Alteld, former governor of Illinois, will be dedicated here at the foot of Diver, sey boulevard in London Park.
The monument which was designed by Gutzon Borglum, a New York sculptor, is of bronze and consists of an 8 foot erect figure of the former governor and a group consisting of a man, woman and child, which he represents as protecting. The monument has an ornate granite base and cost $25,000 which was appropriated by the 18th general assembly of Illinois in 1913.
The unveiling will be in charge of a special commission named by Gov. E. F. Dunne and consisting of Joseph S. Martin, chairman; Daniel L. Cruise, John W. Wager, Louis F. Post and Carroll E. Karche.
Louis F. Post, assistant secretary of commerce, probably will preside at the ceremonies and the speakers according to the present arrangements are to be William J. Bryan, former secretary of state; Governor Dunne; and Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago.
John Peter Alteld was born in Germany in December 1847 and brought to this country in infancy by his parents, who settled in Mansfield, Ohio. He served in the Civil war as a private in the Union army.
He moved to Missouri after the close of the Civil war where he was attorney of Andrew County, Missouri in 1874. He came to Chicago in 1875 and practised law and later became active in the democratic party. In 1884 he was an unsuccessful candidate for congress. In 1886 he was elected judge of the Superior court. He was elected governor of Illinois in 1882 and served one term.

USEFUL INVENTION.
An ingenious person has invented a tool to assist in hanging a skirt. Screw one side of a cheap thin yard stick to a small but heavy block of wood. Then clamp to the yard stick a small ten-cent monkey wrench. In hanging a child's dress place one block on the floor and adjust the wrench for the desired length of skirt. Turn up the skirt where it rests on the wrench handle, and as the child turns slowly around put a mark with chalk the edge of the hem. For an adult's skirt place a waist form on a small round table, adjust the garment over this and hang in the same manner.

BRITISH CONTRIBUTIONS TO WAR CHARITIES IN FIRST YEAR ESTIMATED
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
London, Aug. 31.—The total value of British contributions to war charities during the first year of war is estimated at $125,000,000. The gifts made through agencies in the British possessions would perhaps bring the total up to nearly $175,000,000. Australian contributions in money alone exceeded $15,000,000.
The Prince of Wales' fund for the year reached a total of $27,500,000 and local collections bring this sum up to $40,000,000; the Belgian Relief Commission has had gifts of nearly $10,000,000; the Times Red Cross fund was about $3,000,000; while other large sums were given through the Young Men's Christian Association and other organizations.

WANTED TO BREAK INTO THE REFORMATORY FOR FORGING CHECKS
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
St. Cloud, Minn., Aug. 31.—His studied efforts to break into the state reformatory here rewarded, Robert Arnette rests peacefully today. A few weeks ago, he forged three checks and gave himself up to the St. Paul police. His sentence finished, he soon returned to the St. Paul police, demanded his cell back, saying he had forged another check. He was accommodated. Then he came back here, voluntarily appeared before authorities, and insisted he had forged another check, and asked to be sentenced to the state reformatory. He denied he is writing a book on prison reform.

SAVING MEANS SPENDING LESS THAN YOU EARN
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
London, Aug. 31.—"Saving means spending less than we get" is the maxim around which the Parliamentary War Savings committee has built up a text-book of economy which it will distribute broadcast throughout Great Britain with the aim of teaching Englishmen how to help meet the cost of the war. The instruction given is practical and elementary. The people must buy less from abroad and sell more. They should "travel by train, omnibus, and tram car as little as possible," thus setting free for state service the labor of those who work these means of transport, and saving coal and gasoline. Everything they can grow or raise for themselves "in the form of

"It is not likely he did," she answered thoughtfully. "It may have been mere accident which put the document in his hands. See, here is a letter that father wrote," and she stooped and picked it up from the floor, uttering an exclamation of surprise. "Why, it—it is addressed to Ned Cowan at Union! What could he possibly have written this man about?"

"Let me see," and I took it from her hands. "We may find here an explanation of the whole affair."

It was a single sheet, very formal in expression, as though the writer merely performed a duty which he considered unpleasant, but necessary. He acknowledged receipt of a communication reaching him at Ramsay's headquarters, apparently an application for pardon, and a pledge to unite with the Federal forces, and stated that the writer would be at the Minor house near Hot Springs at a certain date, where he would be glad to confer further regarding the matter. He agreed to come unattended, and suggested that his visitor use the name of Taylor so as to prevent any suspicion.

The closing paragraph referred to a former misunderstanding between them, and expressed a kindly desire to blot out all memory of what had occurred. My hands trembled as I read the lines, and the girl at my side cried softly, her eyes so filled with tears I doubt if she could distinguish the words. Scarcely aware of the action, I held her with my arm, the letter crumpled between my fingers.

"It's all clear enough now, little girl," I whispered, my voice trembling from sympathy. "Your father met his death at the hands of a treacherous scoundrel. It was a plot carefully conceived, and now Cowan has paid the penalty. I am glad we have learned the truth; but Major Harwood would never wish you to mourn here in the midst of all this danger—you are listening?"

"Yes, I will do just as you say."

"It will be best to go; safer, I think, also."

Her hands clung to me, but she was no longer crying, although unshed tears dimmed her eyes.

"I thank God," she faltered, "that he sent you to me. I could not bear all this alone."

"I am glad you care to have me here," I answered eagerly. "I was half afraid you did not."

"Oh, but I do; I cannot tell you all it means. I—I think I have never felt more helpless, or—discouraged."

"It is the strain of so much occurring at once, and you are worn out. We will get away from here, somewhere back into the hills, where we can feel safe from discovery. Then we can rest all day, and you will be all right again. We need sleep and food."

I released her hands gently, began a swift search, and found all we required. I left Cowan lying just as he had fallen. Both of us were glad enough when we closed the door of the shack and returned to our horses. We rode on steadily for an hour, only occasionally exchanging a word. The road was rough and mountainous, so rocky underfoot our horses left no trail. At last we came to a narrow ravine down which a brook plunged over a stony bed. There was no trail visible, but it was possible to advance some distance by keeping close to the bank. I dismounted, and, holding to the rein, led my horse carefully forward.

"Follow as closely as you can," I called back to her, "and keep at the rock edge so as to leave no trail."

A safer place surely could not have been found. We were in a narrow defile, scarcely fifty feet across, and guarded on either side by high rock walls, precipitous, and exhibiting no sign of a trail. I picketed the horses close to the stream and spread blankets for the lady to lie on at the foot of the bluff, where she would be well screened by a thicket of underbrush. Then I came back to where she sat silently against the bole of a large tree, watching my movements.

"No doubt we are safe enough here," I said, opening the pack. "But I'll not risk a fire; you can eat, I suppose?"

"I hardly know," wearily. "Perhaps I can choke a little food down; but really I am not hungry. How far have we come?"

"As a mere guess I should say nearly ten miles since leaving the cabin. By the sun it must be nine o'clock. Eat what you can, and then lie down on the blankets and rest. We will not leave here until just before dark."

"And you?"

"Oh, I may doze later if there is no alarm; I shall never be far away."

She ate of the coarse food daintily, apparently without appetite, but I did full justice to the meal, satisfied for the time being at least, that we were securely hidden. There was a strange constraint between us, and, finally, hoping to make her feel more at ease, I ventured to broach the subject which I knew must be also uppermost in her mind.

"It is an odd situation in which we find ourselves," I began awkwardly, my eyes on the ground, "but I hope you—you will not feel embarrassed, or—or fail to have complete confidence in me. I—I have no wish to take any advantage; or—or assume any authority."

I stopped, unable to express the thing I desired to say, and the silence seemed long. I lifted my eyes, and she was looking at me.

"May I ask you one question?"

"A dozen."

"No, the one is all. You really believed those who attacked us were Cowan's men?"

"I had no other thought, Miss Noreen."

"Then your proposal was merely made in the hope of thus protecting me from insult?"

"That was my sole thought at the time," I replied soberly. "It was a desperate chance, yet the only one apparently left us. That is what I wanted to say, to explain. I went on hastily, before she could interrupt. I realize the serious mistake made, and how embarrassing it must all be to you. But you must believe me a gentleman. I would never have spoken one word; never have made any claim upon you. Miss Noreen, I realize that I have no right."

"You may call me Noreen," she said simply. "We have been friends, and I think we will always be. I do trust you, and believe in you; only I wanted to understand fully your motive. I do not blame you, nor myself; we did what seemed best at the time, and—few we must meet the issue as we best can. Perhaps I should not have said what I did back there in Lewisburg. I had no time in which to consider, and my only thought then was to justify my action in aiding your escape. My—my being your—your wife was the only excuse I could urge for such disloyalty."

"And now you are sorry?"

"I—do not know," hesitatingly. "I cannot decide. Where do you take me?"

"Noreen," I said soberly, struggling to keep my head from touching her own, where it rested on the grass, "it is too late now to go back; to think of going back. We cannot deny or conceal our marriage, since you have openly acknowledged it, and we have gone away together. There is only one straight path left for us now—across the mountains to old Virginia."

"I—I know—and then?"

"You must trust my honor, my discretion. We are friends, you say, and I mean to prove worthy. My orders will take me to Richmond; have you either friends or relatives there?"

"I am not sure, the war has made such changes—but I hardly think any in whom I could confide."

"Then we will find a way for you to join my mother; she is in North Carolina."

Noreen Was Within a Few Feet of Me Higher Up on the Bank.

lina, out of the track of armies. You will consent to go to her?"

"If you think it best, I—I have never met your mother; perhaps—"

"You will be just as welcome; I will write her every detail, and she will be rejoiced to shelter you. The only trouble is the necessary delay involved by the war; the impossibility of your venturing to return to Green Briar until the conflict is over."

She was silent a long while, her eyes cast down, her breathing noticeably rapid. I waited, not knowing what else to add, and was about to propose her lying down, when she spoke suddenly:

"You mean our—our separation?"

"Certainly. That can be easily arranged as soon as the courts are again in session. Possibly the ceremony was not even legal without witnesses, but, under the circumstances, it had better be dissolved in court. Such action would remove all doubt from your mind."

"Yes—I suppose so; you—you make it very clear. And that would have to be done in Green Briar?—the—the action for divorce?"

"At Lewisburg; not necessarily, of course, but I supposed you would rather have the facts made known there, so that your friends can realize all the conditions—the cause, I mean. Possibly you may not need to do this."

"Not need? Why?"

"A soldier never knows what another minute means; I am a soldier."

She did not look at me, or move, although I thought the hand resting on the grass trembled.

"I believe I will lie down," she said finally. "Is that the place you have chosen, beyond those trees?"

"Yes; let me help you up; the blankets are both yours. I shall not need any."

I stood and watched her move across through the mingled shade and sun, until her slender form finally disappeared behind the screen of undergrowth. Once she had glanced about, pausing as though some thought had occurred suddenly, but she did not speak. I was left alone.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Cane Ridge Meeting House.

The spot where Noreen lay was not fifty feet distant, but my position gave me no glimpse of her through the tangled brush. I must have dozed, for the sun was high overhead when I finally aroused myself, and arose to my feet. I watered the animals, and seated myself again, this time on a fat stone beside the stream. Surely I had never been here before, even in the days of my boyhood's vagrant tramping, and yet that terraced crest, with the huge rock chimney rising conspicuous at its center, revived a recollection that would not be entirely denied. I had seen it before, but from another angle—from the south; from that hillside, perhaps, where the creek headed. Why, that was Cane Ridge!

I do not know why I laughed, but I did—perhaps it was from sudden relief at thus discovering exactly where we were, and seeing clearly the easier way out. The sound of a foot stepping on a round stone caused me to face about. Noreen was within a few feet of me, higher up on the bank, one hand holding back the bough of a tree.

"Why were you laughing?" she asked. "I thought you had gone until I heard that sound."

"I had to laugh when the truth finally came to me; that is Cane Ridge."

"Where—where the Baptist church is?"

"Exactly; where Parson Nichols points out to his congregation the straight and narrow way. There is a bridge path yonder leading up from the valley, which will save us a five-mile detour. But it means we are still in Cowan's country, and to climb there with horses will require the use of daylight."

"You think Anne—"

"Is probably back before this, and doing his best to trail us. Even if he does not discover the body of old Ned, he will naturally conclude we will head east. My only hope is that, not having seen us last night he may imagine we chose the southern route, and ride there first. But if he did, doubtless he would send some one of his men scouting this way."

"You have heard—seen nothing?"

"No, we are too far back; the noise of an army passing along the pike would not reach here. If we get to Cane Ridge church before dark, we must trust to luck, and the night for the next thirty miles."

"You fear Cowan's gang more than the troops? Surely they will pursue?"

"No doubt; Pickney will be raving, and Raymond crazy to get hand on me. Ay! there will be some galloping of troopers. I should have liked to see Fox's face when he heard the news. By heavens! they are like enough to charge him with conspiracy, for he was officer of the day. However, I do not greatly fear them; they will make noise enough to warn us, and couldn't track a bear. It is the mountain men we must guard against; they are wolves. You slept well?"

"After the first half hour. I am rested, and strong. Shall we go now?"

"When we have eaten. There may be no other opportunity, and there is ample time."

We sat over the poor meal a long while, talking like old friends, laughing over revived memories, almost forgetting that we were fugitives, our very lives at stake. Twice we heard guns, but the reports were but distant echoes, sounding afar off to the westward. Yet these made me nervous to get away, and when a number sounded together—almost a volley, distinctly audible, I hastened to pack what little remained of food on our horses, and led the way, fording the shallow stream, and guiding my horse up the opposite bank into the deep shadow of the woods beyond. The summit of the hill was open, except for a considerable grove to the rear of the church. That edifice appeared, as I remembered it, unchanged in any respect—a fairly large building, constructed solidly of logs, with square, clapboarded tower in front, four windows on each side, containing small panes of glass, a number of them broken. We were at the rear, which showed a larger window, and a narrow door at one corner, protected by a porch. It appeared desolate and deserted, the loneliness accentuated by the empty hitching racks on either side.

LUCK OF THE DRAW MATCHES TWO BEST GOLFERS IN WEST

Thirty-six Hole Struggle Between Evans and Sawyer Proves Sensational Match of National Tournament.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Detroit, Aug. 31.—A thirty-six hole struggle today between two of the greatest golfers the west has ever known completely overshadowed all other contests which composed the first round of match play for the national amateur golf championship. "Luck of the draw" compelled Charles Evans, Jr., of Chicago, to meet D. E. Sawyer of Wheaton, Ill.

Sawyer and Evans have been considered the most likely western candidates for championship honors. The former has been playing a whirlwind game. He has outshone Evans in the tournament thus far.

Officials of the United States Golf association drew from a cap the names of the opponents which each of the thirty-two surviving contestants was to meet today. Francis Outmet, the national title holder, enjoyed a champion's luck. His name appeared last in the list of pairings.

Nearly all of the contestants expected to make a serious fight for his crown found themselves bunched in the eight upper pairs. Evans, Sawyer, Robert A. Gardner, a former national champion, Max Marston, Paul Hunter and Jesse Guilford, are among this list. Only one of the stars can probably meet Outmet. They might "kill each other off" to win the right to compete in the final round Saturday.

If the Massachusetts youth can successfully conquer an admittedly weaker field, his most severe test will be saved for the last day.

Of secondary interest today was the match between two clever easterners, Max Marston of Springfield, N. J., and Jesse Guilford of Boston. Each is playing in top form. Jerome Travers, nationalist and champion, met George J. Cunniff of Philadelphia. Victory for Travers would mean a must play Marston or Guilford tomorrow. Outmet was bracketed with W. H. Gardner of Buffalo.

Plans for Labor Day at the links and Country club have not been completed. Al Schaller is expecting word from the club at Rockford for a contest here. Plans for several more sweepstakes are being made for the remainder of the season; also for a couple of tournaments.

BASKET BALL RULES PERMIT DRIBBLING

Amateur and Collegiate Rules Will Be Alike This Year, Conference Decision.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Aug. 31.—A committee appointed by the Amateur Athletic union to confer with the college athletic authorities regarding basketball, announced today that for the first time in the history of that game the amateur and collegiate rules this year will be alike.

The principal point of this agreement was the dribble rule. The rule now adopted in substance is as follows: Dribbling will be permitted and at the end of the dribble a player will be allowed to throw for goal and if he makes the goal it will count.

LARRY CHENEY IS SOLD TO THE BROOKLYN CLUB.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Aug. 31.—Larry Cheney, mainstay of the Cub pitching staff for years, was traded to Brooklyn last night by Manager Roger Bresnahan for infielder Joe Schultz and a cash consideration. The sum of money involved was not mentioned. Schultz is a third baseman by preference. He has been doing utility work for the Robins.

With Rochester in the International league last season Schultz batted .316 in 125 games and stole thirty bases. In fifty-four games with Brooklyn this year Schultz has batted .258 and stolen two bases. The acquisition is the first step by Bresnahan in a campaign to get rid of the Cub veterans and build up a new ball club of youngsters for next season.

Rumors that Bresnahan was ready to dispose of either Cheney or Jim Vaughn have been the persistent of late. That Manager Robinson of the Dodgers called at the Cubs' hotel Sunday and spent the rest of the day trying to talk Bresnahan into a trade or sale. It was not until late at night that the deal for Cheney finally was arranged.

Breathed to Coach Utah.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—John Breathed, U. of C. '10, has signed to coach the University of Utah track and football teams it was announced today. On Midway teams Breathed made an enviable record.

Cubs at Watertown, Sept. 10.

Milwaukee, Aug. 31.—Roger Bresnahan's Chicago Cubs will meet the Watertown team at the county fair.

Chief Bender Gets Papers.

New York, Aug. 31.—Unconditional release of Pitcher "Chief" Bender was announced today by the Brooklyn Federal league team management.

American Association fans are going to get a look at a minor league manager next season who has proved to be a pretty consistent winner in the Southern league. His name is Bill Smith and he's now handling the Atlanta club. Reports say he will replace Rube Huiswitt as manager of the Columbus Senators next season. Smith has been in the south almost continuously since 1907. One year he managed Buffalo, with indifferent success.

GAME WARDENS ARE ACTIVE IN AUGUST

Sixty-Five Arrests Made During Month—A Score Taken for Killing Deer Out of Season.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Aug. 31.—Sixty-five arrests and over twenty seizures were made during the month of August for violations of the fish and game laws, according to the detailed reports received and compiled at the office of the state conservation commission. Frank Kindel, Juneau, dynamiting fish, fine, $59.20.

Aside from these arrests there were a number of seizures. In some cases the articles seized were destroyed, but in other cases they have been sold.

It's going to be hard to keep all the members of the growing order of "ex-Cleveland" players out of the impending world series. The Red Sox have a good chance to win the American league pennant, and if they do Veau Gregg will be in on the drive.

The White Sox are contenders, and with this team are Nemo Leibold and Joe Jackson. Bill Steen might have been among the winners if he had been able to stick with Detroit. In the National league Ivan Olson will get a share if the Dodgers win, and Jack Adams will be enriched considerably if the Phillies are triumphant. Some folks say the Reds aren't out of it yet. This is a reminder that Bill Rodgers is still with that club.

Frank Moran, heavyweight, after resting several months, will take a vacation of three weeks before he starts training for a match with Jim Coffey. Fighters certainly have a tough life.

SPIRIT OF CHIVALRY AMONG THE AVIATORS

Airmen of Warring Nations Have Novel and Interesting Experiences in Cloud Fighting.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
British Army Headquarters in France, Aug. 31.—"Though it has been repeatedly stated that chivalry does not exist in this war, said a British aviator, this does not apply to the British and German aviation branches. Whether it is the individualism of our work and its novelty, or whatever it is that is responsible, something of the old spirit of knight-hood maintains among the riders of the air. When a British aviator has to descend in the German lines wheel-horion and chase or because his engine or his plane has been damaged by anti-aircraft gun fire, the next day the Germans report to us his name and whether he survived and if so whether he is wounded. We always do the same. It has come to be a custom."

"The reports are made in a manner worthy of airmen and they are the only communications that they pass between the two forces which watch for heads to call at from their trenches. What is called a 'message bag' is popped over the British lines by a German or over the German lines by a British aviator—sometimes when he is in the midst of bursting shells from the anti-aircraft guns. Long streamers are attached to the plane, and these are run out to get the prize when it lands."

Deliver Message.
It is taken to battalion headquarters which wires the fact on to the aviation headquarters where the fate of a comrade may be known a few hours after he has left his home aerodrome, and, in another few hours, someone in England may know the fate of a relative.

"That is one of the advantages of belonging to the flying corps," say the British aviators. "It may be weeks before his relatives and comrades know whether a man who is missing after a French raid is still alive or dead. Such little kindnesses as this don't interfere with your fighting your best for your cause, at the same time they take a little of the savagery out of war. Of course, the rule could not apply to prisoners taken in trench fighting—only to airmen. There are relatively few airmen on either side and only an occasional one ever comes down in the enemy's lines."

With the first flush of dawn the British planes rise from the aviation grounds and frequently just as a carrier pigeon makes its circle before orienting his compass they will make a circle before starting out for a reconnaissance over the German lines. All day they are coming and going in the dusk of evening they appear out of the vague distances of the heavens returning home to roost.

The fliers become a type with certain marked characteristics. No nervous man is wanted, and it is dangerous for any man who shows any sign of nerves to take a rest. They shy at the mention of their names in print; the spirit of this newest branch of the service of war. Anonymity is absolute. Everything is done by the corps for the corps. Some members have luck, as they put it, and some do not. The one may not be given, but his is the most dramatic of recent experience.

Wounded in Midair.
"He was a pilot flying in Belgium far away from the British front when an anti-aircraft shell mashed his leg, which was hit by fifty bullets and fragments the doctor estimated," as the story was told to the correspondent. "He collapsed in his seat unconscious. His machine dropped at right angles to the line of flight. The observer, who was with him, managed to hold on by clutching at the machine gun."

"They were careening down to the earth with the observer helpless from his position to do anything when I recovered consciousness and mustered strength and presence of mind enough to right the machine, and to turn it round in the midst of a cloud of shrapnel smoke. He was not going to be taken prisoner despite his shattered leg when he found that the shell which had so nearly done for him had not injured the engine or the plane. So he made for the nearest aerodrome."

"There he managed to land safely. But, as he said, he did not dare to get out of his seat until the doctor came for fear that his leg would fall off. He will get well."

Scout Neall of the Phila was in a small minor league town training his lamps on a player that had been recommended to the club. The work of the player impressed Neall and he decided to have a talk with him that night. Shielding his identity, he started a conversation with the player at his hotel. During the talk the busher had occasion to pull out his keyring. Besides keys, the scout saw a corkscrew and beer opener attached. Neall ended the conversation quickly and left the town that night without buying the player.

Tod Sloan, outfielder with Birmingham in the Southern league, will be with the St. Louis Browns again next season for his fourth trial in the major leagues. Sloan has never batted under .300, but was sent back from the majors three times, mainly because he couldn't bunt. Now he says he's learned.

THE RANCHER FINDS THE GOOD JUDGE ON CONUNDRUMS

SAYS the man, who's learned
How good rich tobacco really is:

"Tie your bull on the outside and come on in where the good tobacco is. You've been wasting your opportunity with unnecessary grinding and spitting; rest your jaws and content your soul with a little nibble of the Real Tobacco Chew."

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

ASK YOUR DEALER FOR W-B CUT CHEWING TOBACCO. IT IS THE NEW 'REAL TOBACCO CHEW'—CUT LONG SHRED.

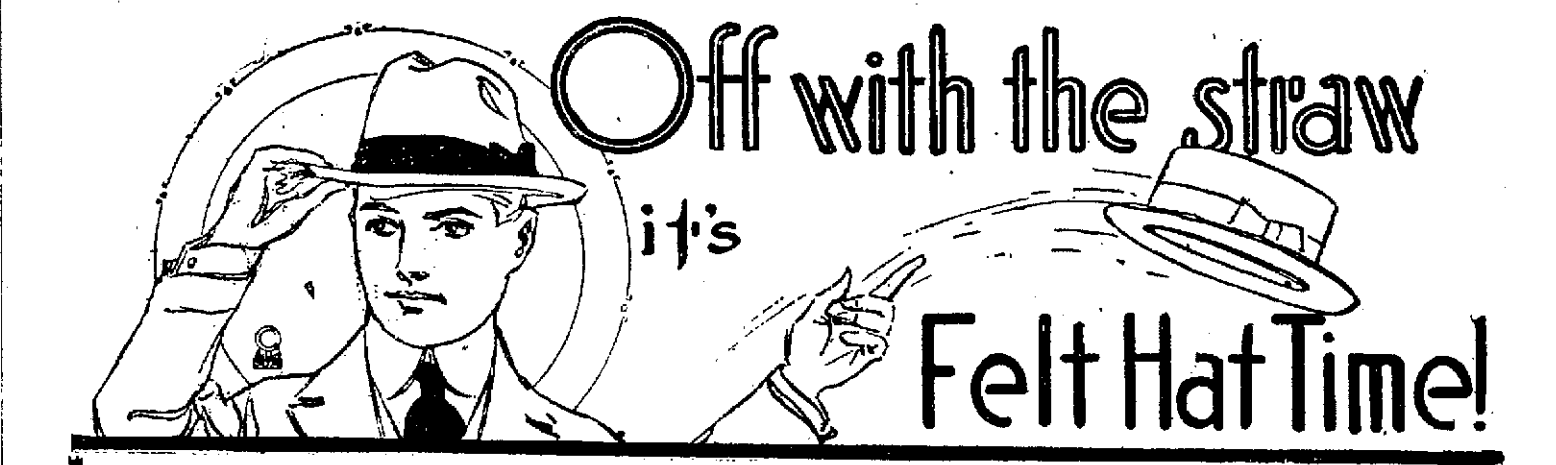

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

(Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.)

PROPOSE TO REDUCE BUILDING ACCIDENTS

State Industrial Commission Sends Leaflet to Contractors Urging Need of Precautions.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 31.—You pay too much for accidents to your workmen, says the Wisconsin industrial commission in a leaflet addressed to the building contractors of the state. The leaflet tells contractors that they can bring about a big reduction in insurance rates by preventing accidents. The following advice to contractors is particularly appropriate in view of recent killings due to faulty scaffolding. It says that if you reduce your accident rate and your insurance rate, just as we have helped manufacturers reduce their accident rates and insurance rates. Every bulletin illustrating some particular point of danger. Put these posters up where your men will read them, and insist that they be read by every man who enters your place. See that every injury, however small, is attended to before it becomes serious. Constant watchfulness on the part of yourself and foreman will prevent a large part of building accidents. In foundries and other hazardous industries, employers have actually reduced accidents by 50 to 75 per cent. by teaching their foremen and workmen to be careful. The leaflet contains a list of 1,189 building accidents in 1914, including the following: Falling from scaffolds, 116 accidents; falling from roofs, 130; falling from ladders, 130; falling from openings, 24; slipping and stumbling, 131; hit by falling objects, 130; care-in of ditches and excavations, 50; hit by flying particles, 55; hit by other moving objects, 25; objects dropped in carrying, 49; lifting or moving heavy objects, 50; sharp edges or splinters, 59; tools and hand apparatus, 52; other objects being handled, 79; stepping on nails, 54; burns and explosions, 45; miscellaneous, 60.

BOY IS STRANGLED TO DEATH IN BARN

Twelve Year Old Son of Michael Dumphy Meets Death Accidentally.—Sister Finds Body.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Evansville, Aug. 31.—Leo Dumphy, twelve year old son of Michael Dumphy, a farmer living four and a half miles southwest of this city, was discovered dead in the rear of a barn on his father's place. Two thrashing machines were thrashing in the neighborhood and his parents at home thought he was one of the machines when he failed to put in an appearance at dinner time. About two o'clock his sister, on going to the barn, found his body hanging from a trip rope in the rear of the barn. The supposition is that while climbing the trip rope on the hay fork it became tangled about his neck in some manner, death resulting from strangulation. No one witnessed the accident. Deceased is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Dumphy and is survived by his parents, seven brothers and five sisters.

DISSENSION CAUSED IN SOCIAL-DEMOCRATIC PARTY IN GERMANY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Berlin, Aug. 31.—Indications continue to multiply that the issues raised by the war have brought a good deal of dissension into the ranks of the social-democratic party. Not only have adherents of the already existing "wings" of the party changed their allegiance in numerous cases, but new groupings have formed themselves within the party. The Breslau Volksrecht, a socialist paper, classifies "four easily distinguishable factions."

The leading group, however, the paper says, is still "the block of August 4th," including the majority of the Reichstag fraction, of the governing committee of the party, of the party committee and of the press.

The majority of the party, it continues, "does not deny the imperialistic character of the war; it desires to do everything to make an early peace possible, but it sees as the only way to this end the existence of a similar feeling in the hostile countries and the seeking of imperialism not only in Germany, but also to some degree elsewhere, for example, in England and Russia. The majority will also oppose plans of coalition, but not only in Germany, and considers impossible any peace which is desired solely by Germany and not by the other countries. In the moment in which advocates of peace raise their voice abroad the party will recognize its duty, and the same can be said of the moment when it shall no longer be necessary to battle for the safety of the Fatherland."

Of a faction termed the "Annexionists," the Volksrecht says that they are merely suspected of being such by their political opponents. "The themselves do not admit it, but let be seen that in their opinion the boundaries of today are not established for all eternity, that such a vision as this world-war cannot over without certain corrections made, and that the time come when one must be reconciled to these corrections."

Another faction described as "Irreconcilables," "reproaches party with having abandoned principles and committed treason against its whole past."

RECOMMENDED PEANUTS AS A FOOD FOR CATTLE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

London, Aug. 31.—Peanuts, local known as monkey nuts, are recommended as cattle food by the Imperial Institute, after a series of experiments with a view to finding a substitute for the higher priced foods.

Before the war, these nuts were imported in great quantities both by Germany and France. They were crushed and pressed for oil and the residue pressed into cakes for cattle.

But England used but a small quantity as the people, when they eat them at all, eat them raw, being ignorant of the fact they are improved by roasting.

India, China and Africa are great producers of peanuts, although they are being introduced into the tropical dependencies.
